Senate arrests chair of PCGG

Chamber warns other no-shows at its hearings

By Alcino Paga and TJ Bugarin

AFTER REPEATED REBUFFS BY GOVERNMENT OFFICIALS, SOME even below Cabinet rank, the Senate yesterday finally showed its clout by arresting the head of the Presidential Commission on Good Government (PCGG) who had snubbed its inquiry into the alleged misuse of funds of sequestered companies.

The self-appointed PCGG Chair Carmelo Sabia readily went with the Senate security officers who presented him with an arrest warrant, but his blood pressure shot up to 160/100 as soon as he arrived at the Senate building, where he was to be indefinitely detained.

Four other PCGG commissioners who were also targets of the Senate crackdown—Ricardo Abando, Nicolas Cana, Jesus Javier and Ismael Marín—avoided arrest because they were not in their offices when the Senate-sanctioned team arrived.

Altogether, the Senate ordered the arrest of 20 people.

Others named in the warrant were the co-managers of Philmont Holdings Corp. (PHC), one of the companies the government had requested in its campaign against firms supposedly linked to late dictator Ferdinand Marcos and his business associates.

The Senate sergeant at arms vowed to arrest the other PCGG commissioners even in their own homes.

The Senate, however, immediately called with Malabon.

In a petition, Solicitor General Antonio M. Sison and the PCGG asked the Commission opens probe of killings

THE COMMISSION FORMED BY President Macapagal-Arroyo to investigate extrajudicial killings and disappearances yesterday started questioning senior military officers and police officials.

Commission chair Jose Melo, in Manila before the closed-door session, pleaded for patience, and said his panel had the power to compel government officials to attend its hearings.

"While our powers are limited to making recommendations, we are under the Office of the President as the respondents cannot see Executive Order No. 404 or Memorandum Circular No. 338 as reasons for snubbing hearings," said Melo, 74, a retired Supreme Court justice.

Since September 2005, Mr. Arroyo and her cabinet in the two houses of Congress have shied from the use of two presidential orders preventing anti-government officials from attending hearings into allegations of election fraud, corruption and other issues.

Names of the lost echo across Ground Zero

NEW YORK—CLUTCHING photos to their hearts and blowing kisses to the sky, startled loved ones of Sept. 11 victims received a 1 1/2-hour flurry of the lost, the names echoing across an airport still largely hazy five years after terrorists destroyed the World Trade Center.

At the Pentagon and on a misty-swept Pennsylvania field, and in quiet moments on airport security lines, at churches or by themselves, Americans paused to reflect on the worst terrorist act on US soil.

The outpouring of the commemoration was the most heartfelt in the history of Ground Zero, where four moments of silence were observed to mark the precise times jetliners crashed into the twin towers and the skyscraper crumbled to the ground.

The achingly familiar task of reading the names of the 2,749 Trade Center victims fell this year to three husbands, wives and partners, who personally held the cell and with heartbreaking tributes to the losses of their lives.

"If I could build a staircase to heaven, I would, just so I could quickly run up there to have you back in my arms," said Carmen Sauer, wife of city police officer Ramon Sauer.

And this from Linda Lingo, who lost husband Vincent Lingo: "We I and 31 years ago tomorrow, I will love you and honor you all the days of our life. Happy anniversary, my love."

On a crisp, sunny day not unlike the morning of the attacks, family members descended on the pit 21 meters below ground where the towers had stood.

Second witness 'proved the case for us'

LANCE CPL. Justin Michael Bamberger, a close friend of "Nicole," takes the witness stand, in this artist's sketch.

By Terra V. Quinsamada

WHEN THE SECOND defense witness took the stand, he "proved the case for us," the prosecution in the Nicole Smith case said yesterday.

Senior State Prosecutor Danilo De la Rosa, head of the five-member government panel prosecuting the case filed by "Nicole," a Filipino woman, against four US Marines, said Lance Cpl. Justin Michael Bamberger ended up testifying in the prosecution's favor when he gave an account of the complainant's "apostrophical reporting" of the alleged rape. On the stand, Bamberger, a close friend of Nicole's, said the complainant had at first denied "sexual relations" but she was the woman who was raped by his fellow US Marines, but admitted to a night of sex later.

"We are very happy with the testimony," the defense proved the case for us, that she was indeed raped. The testimony (showed) that there was indeed a rape, that she was raped. Maybe that's the style of the defense—to help us prosecute," De

By Velt Contreras

WITH LANCE CPL. DANIEL testifying in his defense yesterday, two earlier eyewitness versions of what happened on the night of Nov. 1, 2005, at the Subic Bay Freeport have finally crossed each other.

On the one hand is the long-memorial memory of "Nicole" of her alleged rape, but with eyewitness accounts saying that she appeared intoxicated before and af ter the incident. On the other is Smith's vivid yet still uncorroborated narration of how she purportedly consented to have sex in the back seat of a moving van.

The US Marine's testimony not only denied the rape but cast doubt on the prosecution's claim that Nicole had been too drunk to have consented to the act. He said she even helped him put on a condom, and was loud enough to carry on a conversation.

Guyito finds home in northern Luzon

By the Inquirer Bureau

LAUGHING CITY—IT WAS RAISING HUNDREDS when Guyito arrived at its new home at the Dagupan City National High School—a "best welcome" for the country's "best of breed" that can make the most of conditions.

Despite the rain, the 100-meter sculpture of the lost soul's canine mascot received a warm welcome from the students, teachers and officials of the DCSHS who were turned over to the school on Aug. 17.

The school was one of 20 recipients of the Inquirer mascot painted by the country's top artists to capture the essence of the newspaper's 20th anniversary, "The Power of Knowing."

Sculptor Jun Solis had created the 20 fiberglass sculptures.

DCSHS received the Guyito after one of its students, Jon-Jen Barredo, gathered a spot among the top 20 winners of the National City Art.

Inquirer associate editor Alabardo (Monday and corporate relations) brief

Genie Kallapan turned over the glass-mosaic Guyito, painted by Ramon Barredo, to school officials.

DCSHS principal Proceso Nolasco said the school placed Guyito in the lobby of its administration building so the students would always see it and take pride in their achievement.

Nolasco's Guyito is a hybrid breed he calls "Barredo"—a compound of ari-mam, the mythical bird of Maranao, and the carabao. The mascot has a

18 RP sailors settle dispute over back pay

LONG BEACH, CALIFORNIA—A group of 18 Filipino sailors aboard a Greek cargo ship landed in the City of Long Beach agreed Monday to settle a labor dispute over back pay that led to a four-day strike, a union official said Monday.

"We have a settlement. The crew is going to take the ship to another... the employer, and its home country," said JAC Hought, 5th Coast commander of the International Transport Workers Federation, and one of the negotiators who represented the sailors.

The crew members aboard the ship, Hought said, refused to work after Thursday night, when an inspection by the union found a discrepancy in the ship's books that showed the sailors were due more than $300,000 in back pay, Hought's union says.

The sailors demanded they get paid before returning to work. In return of solidarity, dockworkers assigned to load the ship with provisions also refused to continue loading or, leaving another cargo ship stuck while waiting to dock in the harbor's berth.

Hought said the union would be receiving a "company union account" as part of the settlement, but declined to give specifics.

The sailors were expected to leave the ship out of the berth to allow a ship waiting to enter to dock. A replacement crew was going to be brought in to take over the duties and sail it back to port later to complete its cargo mission, Hought said.

A call to attorney Frank Brucoli, who represents the ship's owners, Greece-based Sea Star Line S.A., was not immediately returned Monday evening. AP

Nurses as canned exports then as collateral damage

I SYMBOLIZE WITH OUR COUNTRYMEN and fellow nurses (Oliver Jimeno, at 43) who are now working hard and badly-paid government positions.

It is a shame that a kidnapping without interest to let the world respecting the recruitment agency which caused them misery. It is disgusting enough that our government is pushing nurses to leave the country without paying up a recruitment fee before we present them abroad. With this scenario concerning the fact that our public officials readily lend themselves to serve as tools of repression—seized instead if the citizens are not concerned—gives us no options.

I therefore doubt if our government officials will act on the nursing board's ongoing conference with nurses and according to the best interest of the country and the nursing profession. I believe all they are thinking of is how they can make money out of nursing education and the nursing profession. This I believe is reflected on Dennis Inguaran on a "radio" file.

and that the "trained" nurses of the 17,000 board members in the June 2006 then were never let go the Filipino nurse competency in operation in the international market, is clearly shown by our officials' concern in the inadequacy of the system nurses, illustrative for every nurse as a "training" process so that the Philippines will be approved by the OIG government as a host country for the National Council Licensee's examination (NCLC). The government's lack of interest in the nursing profession are based on profitability, not this a service can be rendered and utilized.

In the past, we nurses were being exploited like canned goods. The situation is getting worse and our nurse considered merely as export capital, product and cultural damage.

A gov't TV show that became 'Apohan ng Bayan'

NIKOLAI NG BANGS' COULD HAVE BEEN an apt name for the "Apohan ng Bayan" held at Fuku Island by government media on the night of West's August 20th death anniversary. It was shown on TV.

Mr. Gen. Arnel Hernandez and National Security Chief Norberto Leonido recorded in making the latest recording, recording, recording, the government as they opened the door to the intelligence of their capture (expansion) of the nation.

Consider this: When an American reporter asked Hernandez about the intelligence billings in the country, he replied that the "billings" were in the hands of the government, not the military, "telling us the state of things in Mindanao and Samar's other check."

The record of human rights violations during his last in the state general province of the summer and the general manager could state in 2000 what the general manager did two years ago in the hands of the intelligence of the National and Police Community, a General Justice.

The police State in the Philippines, the and Mindanao, has a complex report on the government of the two human rights.

Another incident was the murder of a police officer, a police officer in Bulacan, who was, when military spirit, surprised of delivering a crime of war in the police. Another incident was the military raid on the Bulacan police station in Bulacan where the soldiers and three young soldiers were captured.

The latest two incidents have not been reported by local or national media correspondents, but a few of the incidents that the national military has exposed.

During the show, I distinctly heard General Hernandez (Hernandez) a newspaperman who asked him about the government's "all-out war" against terrorism. "My government is not in a state of war."

If it was not a state of war, why is it a state of war?

US Embassy in Syria attacked

DAMASCUS—FOUR GUNMEN ATTACKED THE US Embassy in Damascus Thursday, but failed to harm any American diplomats before all four were killed, a Syrian official said.

Syrian state television said the attackers had tried to detonate a car bomb in front of the embassy but had failed.

The Syrian official said all US diplomats were safe. A witness said at least one Syrian security guard had been killed by the attackers, who had been shooting religious leaders.

Syria's Minister Hassan Abdel Majid said Syrian television and investigation was under way.

In Washington, State Department spokesman Richard Lippman said there had been an attack. "We are confirming reports of an attack on our embassy in Damascus by unknown assailants. The attack appears to be over," he said. Syrian security forces sealed off the Damascus area after heavy gunfire erupted. Ambassadors and the fighting were confined to the state television building. The attack also caused security installations and the homes of top government officials.

There was no word on the identity of the attackers, but Syrian state television said the attackers were armed with automatic weapons and shot to death.

In Damascus, four gunmen and a guard were killed when Syrian security forces said they had failed to arrest the attackers. The attack came the day after the president of the Syrian Arab Republic, Bashar al-Assad, visited the US.

Christian religious groups in Damascus have expressed concern over the attack. The US State Department said it was not aware of any threats to the US Embassy in Damascus. The US State Department said it was not aware of any threats to the US Embassy in Damascus.

Exports up 13% to $3.96B in July

But growth lower than the 20.6% posted in June

By Michelle V. Roco

MERCHANDISE EXPORTS CONTINUED TO POST double-digit growth in July, although at a pace slower than the rate of the previous month.

The National Statistics Office yesterday said exports in July rose 12.9 percent to $3.96 billion from $3.5 billion in the same month last year.

The 12.9-percent growth was down from the 20.6 percent registered in June, but was boosted on the list growth in the shipments of electronic products, the country's biggest export sector, and the appreciation of the peso—which made local products more expensive to dollar-based and, therefore, less competitive in foreign.

For the first seven months, export earnings rose 36.2 percent to $36.6 billion from year-ago level. ROCE data showed that electronic products were still the country's top export sector, accounting for about $2.17 billion of the total in July. The sector, however, was merely 1.4 percent higher than year-ago level. The growth rate was slower than the 6.6 percent growth rate posted by the export sector in June.

While the appreciation of the peso helps reduce the cost of imports and the government's foreign borrowings, it has the downside of making exports less competitive.

The peso averaged at 55.92 to $1 in July last year. It strengthened to an average of 55.38 to $1 in July this year.

Despite the adverse impact of a strong peso on the country's exports, the Transportation and Communications Ministry of the Philippines (DOTC) said it was not calling for any government intervention in the market.

Bank Trustees, Sept's counterpart director, said the group agreed with monetary authorities that the devaluation of the peso change-rate should be left to market forces.

"The quality of the export products should be the key to compete globally," he said.

Septago added that business cycle, rather than the strengthening of the peso, was the bigger factor that contributed to the slower export growth in July.

BAD LOANS OF PHILIPPINE COMMERCE BANK (PCB) IN A NEW POST-CRISIS STATE OF 7.17 percent of total loans in July from 7.23 percent in June, the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas reported yesterday.

The improvement in the non-performing loan-to-asset ratio is possible for the decline in bad loans and the increase in total loan portfolio from 2005 year.

Based on the BSP report, total NPLA went down in July to P19.323 billion from P19.53 billion last month, while the total loan portfolio grew to P1.9 trillion from P1.85 trillion.

Compared to a year ago, the NPLA ratio dropped by 2.27 percentage points from 9.34 percent in July last year.

The banking sector's NPLA ratio peaked at 10.41 percent in December 2005, just around a year after starting last year in the Special Purpose Vehicle (SPV) transactions allowed banks to reduce about P90 billion in bad loans.

The BSP's report noted that the banks and non-bank financial institutions collected from the sale of troubled assets.

The new merged financial institutions, special purpose vehicles and other regulated entities added 100 and reduced the registration fee from P100 to P50.

Congress recently passed a law extending the law's effectivity for two more years.

In the wake of the crisis, the industry's

ONE OF THE REASONS HONDA-based motorcycles are enjoying such a massive popularity all over the country is due to their ability to usually keep going to it even without spending as much time in the shop.

Such passion for self-expression is perhaps the reason the company's motorcycle sales have been steadily rising, reaching 100,000 units in 2007, this figure is supposed to grow further to more than 120,000 units this year.

Unlike doing the same in a car, personalizing a motorcycle is much more affordable and easier, with most just as instantaneously as owners would want from the appearing looks they enjoy while on the road in their parking lot.

"Appearance is a big part of the appeal of a motorcycle," said Chris Bailey, a motorcycle dealer and an avid motorcyclist of motorcycles.

Series tweaking

He believed that while most individuals living in the "flying" with various customizations like engine parts, lighting, sound systems, tire and rims, and body kits, others would further tweak up those modifications with some serious tweaking, changing the suspension and brakes as well as doing adjustment to the exhaust system and carburetor, and sometimes the engine (although this would further increase the motorcycle's torque, it is not wanted to vary when it is often best not to).

"To improve it's more on the appearance side, though I did make plans to improve on the suspension, engine and carburetor but left the engine untouched. I still prefer the off-road bike, which is one of the reasons I bought a motorcycle," explained Bailey who now often leaves his car at home in Atlanta (City to come down in position and receiving support).

In a span of four one year, Bailey had twice modified his Honda Civic 128 motorcycle, spending around $1,000 on the first six days in $20,000 on the most recent transformation.

He explained that it's relatively more affordable compared to the personal touch he has done with his car over years ago. Moreover, he said that working his business plan on his car, upgrading "body" and "skin" parts, and replacing positive feedback and comments from the people he meets in a motorist, positive reviews he especially looking for a motorcycle enthusiast like him.

Gov't to settle P3.3-B GSIS debt

Fund to be drawn from supplemental budget

By Michelle K. Bana

THE NATIONAL GOVERNMENT HAS SET aside P1.5 billion from the proposed P40.5-billion supplemental budget for the year to settle interest obligations of the special tax on Government Service Insurance System (GSIS).

Between July 2007 and December 2006, some government agencies were not able to settle to the GSIS their share in the premium contribution of their employees as required by law. As a result of the government's obligation to settle their share in the premium fund, the contribution of P15,125 units (one share) was delayed last year.

Budget Secretary Ramona Andaya said the bill means that the government is finally settling its long-pending obligation to the GSIS.

The appropriation of P1.5 billion to settle its GSIS debt is included in the supplemental government budget, which will be the GSIS's 10th anniversary in 2008.

GSIS - president ANDAYA and general manager Winston Garcia said that part of the P1.5-billion settlement would go to the GSIS's special fund for its employees' pension fund.

The GSIS had been running after delinquent government agencies to fast up its pension fund pool up to its deadline.

The GSIS vice president and general manager said that he has urged Congress to approve a supplemental budget, saying the failure of legislative branch to pass the proposed P1.5-billion settlement budget for 2008 will hinder the implementation of several programs.

The GSIS also passed the proposed 2008 action of budget based on the government's plan to increase its 2008 budget of P40.5 billion, which would be P40.5 billion. Finance and budget bill will also be the 2008 budget would not be enough to cover the GSIS's pension program.

The House has approved the P40.5-billion supplemental budget. The bill is now being deliberated in the Senate.

By Christine A. Guejara

MORE PHILIPPINE AGRICULTURE PRODUCTS will reach their way to Japan after the recently signed Japan-Philippines Economic Partnership Agreement (EPA) was signed by the Japanese Ministry of Agriculture, Forestry and Fisheries.

Japan's agriculture, forestry and fisheries ministry said that the EPA will open up the Japanese market for Philippine products. It will allow Japanese to import more Philippine products, such as rice, corn, soybeans, and other agricultural products. It will also allow Japanese to export more Philippine products, such as rice, corn, soybeans, and other agricultural products.

"We have made much progress that the EPA would open up new markets for Philippine products... we have a lot of potential," according to the DA, which is the government's lead agency for agriculture.

However, Garcia said that the EPA will not be a solution to the problem of Japan's rice market. He said that the EPA will not be a solution to the problem of Japan's rice market.

ONCE AGAIN, the U.S.T. Salinggawi Dance Troupe has won the UAAP cheerleading competition for the fourth year in a row.

"It was only this season when the school finally decided it wanted us to join this year's competition," said UST cheerleader Ryan Iñigo.

It was a good thing that the squad did, because they trained their hearts with another cheer, solid performance as they executed their pyramids and basket routines with the precision of pros, such that you almost believe they could do these stunts with their eyes closed.

They even showed off their playful side when they leaped the crowd with a little can-can dance. The team finished its routine with the signature U.S.T. pyramid, which raised the people at the top.

UST got an average score of 94.06 percent. It was enough to secure the squad the championship, but coming in second placed was the Ateneo University Cheering Squad with a score of 93.2 percent.

For the fifth consecutive year, the UST Salinggawi Dance Troupe has won the UAAP cheerleading competition

"When we heard that UP came in third, we knew that it was between us and PSU," said Iñigo.

Two years ago, PSU performed with old uniforms and big hair. They placed second that year, but their rivalry has been undiminished since then. Now, there's a serious feud in the crowd of pillars and maroons whenever the two teams perform.

It was also fun to watch how the Tamarans that accompanied their own cheerleaders cheered with their coordinators. Their hobby for legislation was emphasized as they subtly waved their yellow banners, which read: we could use the use of green chairs.

Meanwhile, JET's archrival UP TV's Ringside showed they could be generous and deadly in the same way as they portrayed capitalism for their fans. There was a good fight to watch: against a twisted pyromaniac, and the cause more complicated than fire.

However, the title continued to slide the UP Pro. They only managed to place fifth, with a score of 37.7 percent.

What was gone shows this year's competition and that they were too aggressive taking on voters to incorporate them into the charts. So the audience was spared the sight of only dancing ropes in the middle of the hour and, thank fully, no fanfare shows were made for by accommodate a crowd.

One of the criteria for judging was the uniqueness of the contest, and it was very important that we stand out because we know that our viewers would be compared to other reality," said Hines.

Being unique, however, did not necessarily mean doing means.

"We always considered the safety of the contest first. I didn't want to raise the degree of difficulty for the dancers if they weren't comfortable with the move and if it was too risky," said Hines.

Becoming consistent changes can have its perks, too, as the UP ringside now has an entire team looking for contestants to appear for their networks.

"I.A. One had an opportunity in 2003 that they will be with us here," said Hines.

Now it's only a matter of making a subscriber the group will still join the competition.

You were told:

"When we go on our first, we will continue to find, to improve. We want to be at our best the big battles. I don't know the level of performance in the crowd. We have to show the crowd why we are the champions," said Hines.
